review

"Fans of live hip-hop, let me hear you," rapper Chuck D said during Public Enemy's Sunday night show at Belly Up. It might sound like a rallying cry, but it was more like a boast. Chuck D has been critical of hip-hop's ability to transfer to the live setting, but Public Enemy has no such trouble. Backed by a live band, Chuck D and Flavor Flav proved a dynamic duo — funny, musical, relevant and enormously entertaining.

A LOOK BACK AND A LOOK AHEAD AT THE WEEK IN ENTERTAINMENT

preview

Simon Mein Thin Man Films Ltd.

Is there a film director who gets more out of an actor than Mike Leigh? Probably not. Any who portrays ordinary, working-class life more poignantly? Keep looking. One who finds the heroic in more unpromising places? Watch "Vera Drake," then get back to me. The 68-year-old Brit is at it again with the Oscar-nominated "Another Year," his comic drama of a happily married couple, and the not-so-happy world around them. It opens Saturday at the Wheeler.
